possibly the best dry cleaner in malaysia

after my sister's bad experience with our favourite dry cleaner in seremban, i took extra precautions sending off my clothes to the dry cleaner- especially those that cost a bomb. my sister's chiffon's dress can't be worn again so yeah- imagine wearing it sekali je, lepas hantar dry cleaning terus tak boleh pakai. stress

i, however, have found the best dry cleaner in malaysia (in kuala lumpur to be precise).

if you had a chance to belek my wedding dresses especially the one done by sharifah kirana- you will notice the intricate beading and the last thing i want to do is to ruin my dresses by sending them off to those non expert dry cleaners.

the place is non other than...

when we got our nikah baju, i asked fiance (now hubby) to send off the baju for pressing, kirana told us the best place to go is jeeves, and mandarin oriental, but since jeeves is in bsc and its only sekangkang kera sahaja from hubby's house- i say why not.

yes, the baju siap within 2 days, and because there were some markings on the baju, the owner; an english man told hubby to get it dry cleaned, both of us were very happy with the service and decided to send all my wedding dresses to jeeves.

yes, we were very happy with the outcome. my chiffon dress (seremban reception) stays in shape. takde mengencil or takde mengembang or takde terkoyak, so, if any of you tell me it's okay if ur chiffon baju not to stay in shape after a while- it won't happen here in jeeves.

plus, if your baju ada terkoyak sikit ke, or ada benang from the beading tertanggal ke they will help to jahit but you have to mention lah where and where.

you should try sending off your baju if you love your baju as much as i love mine. plus, i will be only married once, so why not. once in a lifetime je kot?

in terms of the price, i guess this place has the highest price in the market- but thats what you have to pay in order to get good service kan?

that is not the owner. that is azman.

oh yea, i almost forgot, they also do drop offs without any extra charges (i guess the price is already included, he he he)

oh if you think jeeves is super expensive, then i have another option for you.

niki (from glamourpusscards and nikigotmarried) told me once that she send off her baju to pristine. pristine is located in bangsar well dekat jalan telawi. next to alexis, bangsar opposite starbucks. this place is awesome. u send ur baju today, you will get the next day. price? sama je dengan kedai dobi dekat seremban tu yg ambil masa a week to get my baju done. i havent try to send my sister's chiffon dress here- takut rosak but so far i am very satisfied with the service, price pon not bad. i sent my baju tunang there. and dress lica yang mahal tapi pakai sekali pon dekat situ. and other baju as well. and all hubby's wedding baju.

or maybe chiffon are exceptional- i should stick to jeeves je kot?..)

there this one shop called presto. i heard they are good too. maybe i should check it out soon.

in the mean time, the best dry cleaner in malaysia goes to JEEVES.

p/s other than in bsc, jeeves also can be found along jalan ampang. if you are familiar with hock choon not teck hoon lol (a supermarket that is next to victoria station) next to it there are few shops- jeeves is at the end of the block.

- ! Thank god for this post because err. 3 of my bajuks are still in their clothing bag waiting for me to send them for dry cleaning. hehehe. my baju don't have any intricate beading but i am afraid that the pleats on my reception dress will be out of shape if not handled properly. jeeves sounds so exclusive but maybe i'll give a try. - sarahsayangman said... Moose, ko pon tak antar lagi? sama la. i am looking for a good dry cleaner gak since both my baju ada kotor and both are chiffon... Jeeves sounds so expensive but I heard presto is good as well. nampak kat telawi jugak aritu. thanks for the post hee. January 19, 2011 12:52 PM
- LisaLisut said... Heed - just nk bgtau. i br baca blog miss X (when he proposed i said yes). dia bangang dengan prasto. huhu. u stick jela dgn Jeeves tu ye :) January 23, 2011 4:31 PM
- bitsANDpieces said... lisa: alhamdulillah. told ya. jeeves is good. baju mahal kene jaga extra la sikit. January 24, 2011 8:46 PM
- bitsANDpieces said... @moose if your baju is chiffon i dont suggest htr dekat pristine. not that the place tak bagus ke ape, sbb i havent try htr chiffon dekat situ. chiffons are very delicate, sangat manja. i dont know sometimes the dobi is good tapi maybe dieorg pucuk pekerja yang weng sikit. plus only a few dry cleaners tahu nak agak berapa banyak chemical nak guna. good luck! - bitsANDpieces said... @sarah presto? yes they look very professional. dah baca entry miss x? macam tak pro je. jgn htr situ if ur baju guna kain chiffon. January 24, 2011 8:49 PM
- bitsANDpieces said... @mel have u tried to send your chiffon clothes dekat sitlu? if u have and the outcome is good i will send mine dekat sane. so far jeeves can handle your chiffon very well January 24, 2011 8:49 PM
- My Journey said... heed, thank you for this post... somebody rented my baju and accidently hand washed it. i nak nagis tkg because of the stains..oh so sad....n then i bought organic soap to detukan..alhamdulillah now the stain is very minimal...but its still there...but tak dah nampak dah... - Mr.Jeeves said... Well...thank you very much for the glowing review of Jeeves! My Name is Jeff Walmsley and I am the owner of Jeeves in Malaysia and soon to be Singapore. We certainly do our very best and i personally look at many of the garments before they leave our facilities. It's true we are more expensive but i would like to mention that what happens behind the scenes is very different. I won't try and express everything here but perhaps make a couple of quick comments. At Jeeves we have spared no expense in equipment and training and in fact our investment has been very substantial relative to a typical setup. We only dry clean in liquid silicone, a technology developed by Proctor and Gamble together with General Electric. The equipment and solvent is considerably more expensive but it is extremely gentle on fabrics. We also take the time to try and remove all stains by hand prior to dry cleaning. It's time consuming but we believe it to be the safest process as the stains which don't come out in dry cleaning can be set. As I say, i won't bore you with too much here but did want to thank you for taking the time post on us. Lastly, we have a strong belief in continuous improvement. I always say to our staff that we must be a better cleaner every year! In fact I require one suggestion per month from every member of our team! I personally find that one of the qualities that makes for a great cleaner is a continuous desire to improve and a passion for taking care of the lovely garments entrusted to us. One of my favorite examples of this was at our recent Jeeves conference in Hong Kong where we had Jeeves affiliates from around the world attend. Even those affiliates whom have been in Jeeves for 15 years were picking up new tricks from their colleagues. In fact even Jeeves of London (whom has cleaned for the Royal family for many years) picked up a few new tricks! I am hoping to put up a Jeeves blog soon to answer everything to do with garment care. Thanks again and very happy to hear that you were satisfied with our service! Warm regards, Jeff www.jeevesmalaysia.com February 2, 2011 9:01 AM
